Greensboro College

2006 - 2007

Overview of Master's Program

Greensboro College began offering courses toward the Master of Education degree in Elementary Education and Special Education in summer of 2003. Both masters degrees lead to advanced licensure, with two licensure tracts in the special education program - learning disabilities and behavioral and emotional disorders. Two new full-time faculty members were hired in the summer of 2003. A third full-time faculty member was hired for special education in fall semester, 2006, and a fourth elementary education faculty member begins fall semester, 2007. The third class of M.Ed. candidates graduated in May, 2007. The M.Ed. in Elementary Education consists of 18 hours of professional studies and 18 hours of specialty studies; the M.Ed. in both Learning Disabilities and Behavioral and Emotional Disabilities also requires 18 hours in professional studies and 18 hours in the specialty area. Coursework is designed to be completed in 18-24 months. Exit criteria include a product of learning – either a portfolio or an action research project. A variation of the graduate programs (known as Licensure Plus) is available to candidates with a bachelor's degree but no initial licensure. These programs lead to SP1 licensure. After completion of the initial license, candidates may enter the M.Ed. advanced licensure program. The courses in the graduate programs in education are based on North Carolina advanced licensure standards. The courses also carry forward the major themes of our conceptual framework: meeting the needs of a culturally diverse population, using best practices, reflective practice, and lifelong learning.

Special Features of Master's Program

Two variations of the graduate programs (known as Licensure Plus) are available to candidates with a bachelor's degree but no initial licensure. These programs lead to initial licensure and are available to lateral-entry teachers. Licensure Plus candidates who are NOT teaching are required to take an additional clinical internship which is the equivalent of student teaching. After completion of the initial license, candidates may acquire the M.Ed. with the completion of 18-21 additional graduate hours in either elementary or special education.
